ICFAI University adopts Khelgaon stream for cleanliness

SE Report

GANGTOK, May 23: The ICFAI University, Sikkim, having its campus at Sichey here has adopted a stream along Khelgaon premises to take up cleanliness drive on a regular basis. The initiative was announced after the university students and officials took part in the riverfront clean up drive in the stream, which is a tributary of Rani Chu river.

The cleanup on its eighth day today was also joined by panchayats, local residents and Forest officials. Monitoring official A.K. Das, the deputy secretary of Union Environment and Forest ministry, was also present on the occasion.

The initiative was appreciated by the ministry and Forest department officials and was assured to fund the eco-club of the university under the National Green Corps eco club programme funded by the Centre government.

The 20-day riverfront cleanup drive is a part of World Environment Day activity on the theme 'Beat Plastic Pollution,' and is supported by the MoEFCC, a press release informs.
